

Name: Dr. Veerpal Kaur
Designation: Assistant Professor
Department: Home Science
Faculty of Arts Craft and Social Sciences
Email ID: kaur.veerpal1684@gmail.com

About: Dr. Veerpal Kaur is a dedicated scholar in Home Science and Nutrition, with a strong academic background and research expertise. Holding a Ph.D. from J.N.V.U, India (2019) and NET qualification in Home Science (UGC 2019), along with an M.A. in Food and Nutrition from Maharaja Ganga Singh University (2008), She has contributed significantly to nutritional studies.

Their research work, "Assessment of Nutritional Profile of Child Laborers Residing in Hanumangarh, Rajasthan, India," Examines the dietary habits, health challenges, and socio-economic factors affecting child laborers. With four research publications and participation in ten conferences/seminars, She has explored critical issues in nutrition and public health.

Qualification:

- P.hD J.N.V.U, India 2019
- NET Home Science, UGC 2019
- M.A. Food and Nutritions, Maharaja Ganga Singh University, India 2008
- B.A. Maharaja Ganga Singh University, India 2005

No. of Research Publications: 5

No. of Conference/Seminar: 10

Research Work: - Assessment of Nutritional Profile of Child Laborers Residing in Hanumangarh, Rajasthan, India.

Areas of Interests:

1. Nutritional Deficiencies in Child Laborers – Investigating malnutrition, dietary gaps, and health risks among working children.
2. Socio-Economic Impact on Nutrition – Analyzing how poverty and labor conditions affect food security and health outcomes.
3. Public Health Interventions – Studying policies and programs aimed at improving child nutrition and well-being.
4. Sustainable Food Practices – Exploring ways to enhance nutritional intake through affordable and accessible food sources.